SCHOOL REPORT.

THE SCHOOL BOARD for the town of Springfield have performed their duty with no less interest than last year, with much greater results.

We have maintained nine schools, the same as last year, six of 10, one of 8, one of 9, and one of 15 weeks ; making 92 weeks of schooling for the year, at a cost of $379, or, $4.12 per week. See statistical table. We are pleased to report the schools all profitable, though in different degrees. The four schools taught by teachers from our own town were very profitable. The very fact that a school is allowed to continue may be regarded as a sign of profitableness, although there may be reason for criticism.

The committee have been pleased to notice the cordiality with which they have been met on the part of the scholars and teachers, and the hearty support of parents, and the apparent interest of all concerned, without which any mutual interest is really lessened.

Without stopping to discuss the merits or demerits of the different schools, by which much injustice may be done, we will proceed to speak of subjects of greater importance.

Allow us to say, in justice to the scholars at least, that we have some very fine scholars, and although we have less schooling, and poorer school houses, and less money expended for school purposes generally, our scholars will compare well with the adjoining towns. Allow us to say further that this town has furnished as many, if not more, good teachers than any town adjoining it, of equal population, and while we have many scholars who never will make good teachers, we have a good proportion who will, if they can have the advantages of about twenty weeks of schooling a year.

We beg of the town to give us money enough for fifteen or twenty weeks in each school. We also think it very necessary to have some of the school houses repaired; we are ashamed to ask a teacher to occupy some of them.

The teachers will allow us to say that we feel the need of more book-learning on the part of some, without which they can not return to the same schools that you had last year. There is a need of more practical and thorough instruction in the "whys" and "wherefores"—the reason of things. We do not expect a teacher to give all the reasons with which they come in contact, but a teacher should be able to give a part of them, at least. There is a great difference between hearing a scholar recite, and teaching him, or extorting knowledge from him—drawing out and developing the mental powers.

If it was convenient or prudent to unite our schools we would do so and secure better qualified teachers. If we should demand the qualifications that we would like, we should be unable to secure teachers for all of the schools. A teacher can make his school much more profitable by making some preparation on each day's lessons. The best teachers will look over each lesson before undertaking to teach it, and why should not those teachers who are deficient in some of the branches to be taught? We wish you could feel it your duty to attend the academy at New London and be under the instruction of Prof. Peaslee for two or three terms, and learn some of the reasons with which you would meet, under his instruction. We intended to give the scholars a short essay, in this report, but will reserve the space until the next report.

Thanking all for the support with which we have met, we respectfully submit the foregoing.
